

Eugene Duffy

Partner and Principal at Paradigm Asset
Management Company

For more than three decades, Eugene J. Duffy has served in the public and private sectors with distinction and applause. A former appointed official in Atlanta city government, Eugene J. Duffy served prominently in the administrations of the late Maynard H. Jackson and Ambassador Andrew Young. His subsequent work as a financial professional and entrepreneur has been equally well received.

As Mayor Young's Deputy Chief Administrative Officer, Mr. Duffy also served under then-Chief Administrative Officer, and now Mayor, Shirley Clarke Franklin. His tenure as Deputy CAO saw him play major roles in numerous Atlanta firsts: the billion dollar expansion of Hartsfield-Jackson Airport, the development of Underground Atlanta, the construction of the first toll road in Georgia (GA400), a record setting infusion of foreign capital by international banks, and the capture of the 1996 Olympic Games. As a result of his performance, Mr. Duffy was elected Chairman of the Urban Consortium, a group of municipal leaders from the nation's largest cities and counties. As a trustee for the Willie L. Brown Jr. Institute on Politics and Public Service he continues to interface with academicians, elected officials and other policy makers on issues of governance and capital markets.

Currently, Eugene J. Duffy is a Partner and Principal at Paradigm Asset Management Company, where he serves as a member of the strategic planning and executive committees. Paradigm is a registered investment advisor for clients ranging from General Motors and American Express to the Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority.

Mr. Duffy sits on the Board of Directors of The Sunrise Bank of Atlanta and is the former Chairman of the National Association of Securities Professionals (NASP). Mr. Duffy is a Director for the American Beacon Funds, a 50 billion dollar mutual fund company formerly owned by American Airlines. He is the current Chairperson of the Trustee Board for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) and serves on the Board of Visitors for Emory University and the Atlanta Botanical Garden. Duffy is a founding member of the Atlanta Chapter of 100 Black Men, a member of the Morehouse College Annual Fund Committee. He is also a trustee for The Willie L. Brown Jr. Institute on Politics and Public Service, an independent, non-profit organization providing a forum for non-partisan education, debate and discussion of public policy.

Mr. Duffy was educated at Morehouse College where he served as a student member of the Board of Trustees and was selected as a Charles E. Merrill Scholar to study at the University of Ibadan, Nigeria.

He is married to the former Miss Norrene Johnson and has two children.
