NAACP'S ENVIRONMENTAL & CLIMATE JUSTICE YOUTH DELEGATION BIOS

MEET THE NAACP STUDENT LEADERS
The ECJ Youth Delegation

Tegan Bilot

Tegan is a member of the Pointe-Au-Chien Indian Tribe, and a native of South Louisiana. She is a recent graduate of the Master of Accountancy program at Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge, Louisiana, United States. This fall she will begin working for Ernst & Young in Texas, United States.
Kristen D. Brown

Kristen is originally from Augusta, Georgia. She currently lives in Ewa Beach, Hawai‘i where she attends James Campbell High School. She is an active member of the Honolulu NAACP and an active member of the Nanakuli Performing Arts Counsel (NPAC). Kristen was recently recognized for her Alice Augusta Ball Video and her video discussing climate change in Hawai‘i (see links below). She maintains a 3.5 grade point average while taking demanding Advanced Placement and Early College Courses. Kristen is passionate about conserving the environment, African American History, and music. In her free time she enjoys singing, playing the piano, the guitar, and the ukulele. Upon graduating, she will major in performing arts.

Savannah Ancar

Savannah is a 20-year-old college student and youth leader of the Atakapa-Ishak/Chawasha Tribe, located in Grand Bayou, Louisiana. Savannah began her climate work with the Atakapa-Ishak/Chawasha Tribe, a southeastern coastal community that is water accessible only. Naturally, the tribe frequently deals with issues of climate change and other environmental challenges daily.

Through this intimate understanding of climate issues, she became involved with the First Peoples Conservation Council, and worked with cultural re-invigoration programs.
The ECJ Youth Delegation

Rodney Woods, Jr.

Rodney is an 18-year-old rising college freshman and photographer. He has been a member of Big Dreamers, a youth empowerment organization, since he was 5, and now serves as their chief photographer.

He also runs his own photography business. Having recently graduated high school with a 4.0 GPA, Rodney plans to attend college for Criminal Justice, and hopes to become a Forensic Photographer.
Antonio Green

Antonio is a 17-year-old member of the Gulfport NAACP. He became interested in environmentalism through training events hosted by the Gulfport NAACP, and through his environmental science classes at Gulfport high. He is interested in the pH balances of Gulf waters, the eroding ecosystems of the Louisiana coast, how carbon dioxide and nitrogen have impacted the ozone layer, and the migration of invasive species to our country.

Equipped with his insatiable zest for knowledge, Antonio is determined to use his voice to diminish and avert further climate erosion.
NAACP's Environmental and Climate Justice Program Mission
Advancing the leadership of frontline communities to eliminate environmental and climate injustices and ignite an environmental, social, and economic revolution.
